Using the Present Tense to tell stories: Put the stories in order. Write numbers 1-5 in the boxes.

It's not until we get to the venue for the 'gig' that she realizes I've organized a surprise get-together with over 65 of her closest friends there!
She's absolutely over the moon.
She's feeling a bit low because she hasn't heard from most of her friends all day and no one has really wished her a happy birthday.
It's my friend's birthday and I tell her we we're going to a gig to see a new band we both like.

At first, I just shrug it off and think I've missed out on some sort of inside joke, but then it carries on for another few minutes.
I'm absolutely mortified.
I finally turn around and notice my ten-year-old has been dancing behind me the whole time!
I've been in a video call with my boss and most of my team for a meeting when I notice everyone's laughing.

Is it Saturday today? Oh No! It's Friday!
So, I get up early in the morning and start getting ready.
I'm going camping today.
As I am brushing my teeth after having a huge breakfast, something crosses my mind.
As a matter of fact, I've never been camping before.

Thomas walks down the street. He looks at shop windows and enjoys the sunny day.
He climbed into the UFO and said: You don't meet Martians every day.
They invite him to fly with them. He was literally over the moon.
Then he looks up and sees a UFO above his head! And two little Martians are waving goodbye.
Suddenly he hears a strange noise behind him. He quickly turns around,...But nothing's there.

LIVEWORKSHEETS