In today's globalized world, respecting cultural differences is more important than ever. People from various cultures have unique traditions, languages, and ways of life that enrich the diversity of our society.

By showing respect for these differences, we can build stronger connections and foster understanding between individuals and communities. For example, learning about someone's customs, like their food, clothing, or holidays, helps us appreciate their heritage and promotes harmony.

On the other hand, failing to respect others' cultures can lead to misunderstandings, conflicts, and discrimination. Judging others based on stereotypes or rejecting their traditions creates barriers instead of bridges. For instance, mocking someone's accent or beliefs can damage relationships and prevent cooperation. Respecting diversity not only benefits individuals but also strengthens societies by encouraging teamwork and tolerance.

In conclusion, respecting cultural differences allows us to grow as individuals and as a global community. When we embrace diversity with an open mind and heart, we create a more peaceful and inclusive world for everyone.

Question 31. What is the main idea of this passage?
A. It's important to respect cultural differences as this enriches individuals and societies.
B. Mocking traditions and accents can cause disagreements and even conflicts on a social scale.
C. Cultural differences have a great influence on society but it is up to you to respect them.
D. Judging others does not benefit you but it is not forbidden, so you can do it or not.

Cramming before exams might seem like (37) _____. However, it often does more harm than good. When students try to study everything in a short amount of time, they become overwhelmed and stressed. This pressure can lead to sleepless nights, which makes the brain tired and less able to remember information. As a result, (38) _____.

Moreover, cramming focuses on memorization rather than understanding. While students might remember facts temporarily, they often forget them shortly after the test. This method prevents real learning. As a result, (39) _____.

In addition, the stress of cramming can negatively impact mental health. Constant worry and lack of rest can cause (40) _____. Instead of cramming, students should plan their study time wisely, giving themselves enough breaks and reviewing lessons gradually.

A. students may struggle to perform well during the exam

B. anxiety, irritability, and even burnout

C. it makes it harder to build a strong foundation for future studies

D. a good way to quickly absorb knowledge
