EXERCISE 5 Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions

Over the past 600 years. English has evolved from a language of few speakers to the dominant language of international communication. English as we know it today emerged around 1350, after having combined many elements of French that were introduced following the Norman invasion of 1066. Until the 1600s, English was for the most part, spoken only in England and had not expanded even as far Wales, Scotland, or Ireland. However, during the course of the next two centuries. English began to missionary work. Thus, small enclaves of English speakers became established and grew in various parts of the world. As these communities expanded, English gradually became the primary language of International business, banking, and diplomacy.

Currently, about 80% of the information stored on computer systems worldwide is in English: Two thirds of the world's science writing is in English, and English is the main language of technology, advertising, media, international airport, and air traffic controllers. Today, there are more than 700 million English users in the world and over half of these are non-native speakers, forming the largest number of non-native users than any other language in the world.

B. About 80% of information in the world is stored on computer systems isn't in English.
C. None of the world's science writing is in English.
D. More than 350 million English users in the world are non-native speakers

EXERCISE 6: Read the passage carefully and decide whether the following statements are TRUE or FALSE.

THE HARDEST LANGUAGE

People often ask which is the most difficult language to learn, and it is not easy to answer because there are many factors to take into consideration. Firstly, in a first language the differences are unimportant as people learn their mother tongue naturally, so the question of how hard a language is to learn is only relevant when learning a second language.

A native speaker of Spanish, for example, will find Portuguese much easier to learn than a native speaker of Chinese, for example, because Portuguese is very similar to Spanish, while Chinese is very different, so first language can affect learning a second language. The greater the differences between the second language and our first, the harder it will be for most people to learn. Many people answer that Chinese is the hardest language to learn, possibly influenced by the thought of learning the Chinese writing system, and the pronunciation of Chinese does appear to be very difficult for many foreign learners.

However, for Japanese speakers, who already use Chinese characters in their own language, learning writing will be less difficult than for speakers of languages using the Roman alphabet.

Some people seem to learn languages readily, while others find it very difficult. Teachers and the circumstances in which the language is learned also play an important role, as well as each learner's motivation for learning. If people learn a language because they need to use it professionally, they often learn it faster than people studying a language that has no direct use in their day to day life.

Question 1: The question of how hard a language is to learn is relevant to both first and second language acquisition.

Question 2: Portuguese is definitely easier than Chinese.

Question 3: A Japanese speaker may well find the Chinese writing system easier than a speaker of a European language.

Question 4: Motivation also play an important role in learning language.

EXERCISE 7 Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions

Today, millions of people want to learn or improve their English but it seems difficult to find the best method. Is it better to study in Britain or America or study in your own country?

The advantages of going to Britain seem obvious. Firstly, you will be able to listen to the language all the time. You will be surrounded completely by the language wherever you go. Another advantage is that you have to speak the language if you are with other people. At home, it is always possible to use your mother tongue if you want to. However, the learning is slower.

On the other hand, there are also advantages to staying at home to study. You don't have to make big changes in your life. As well as this, it is also a lot cheaper than going to Britain. If you have a good teacher, I think you can learn in a more concentrated way than being in Britain without going to a school.

So, in conclusion, I think that if you have enough time and enough money, the best choice is to spend some time in the UK. This is simply not possible for most people, so being home is the only viable option. The most important thing to do in this situation is to maximize your opportunities: to speak only English in class and try to use English whenever possible outside the class.

Question 1: What is probably the topic of the passage?

- A. The best way to learn English.
- B. English schools in England and America.
- C. How people learn English.
- D. Learning English in many countries.

Question 2: What is one of the advantages of going to Britain to learn English?

- A. There are no people who know your language in Britain.
- B. There are many good teachers of English there.
- C. The language schools in the UK are always better.
- D. You will have to use English all the time.

Question 3: What is one of the advantages of staying at home to learn English?

- A. You can concentrate on English only.
- B. You don't have to work too hard to make money for your study.
- C. You always have good teachers of English.
- D. Your life can continue more or less as it was before.

Question 4: The word “viable” in the passage probably means _____.

- A. careful
- B. possible
- C. understandable
- D. important

Question 5: People who don't have a lot of time and money to learn English abroad should _____.

- A. use English only when they have English classes
- B. learn English in English classes
- C. speak English as often as possible; in English class and even outside it
- D. speak English less outside the class
