If you decide to live in another country, first you should think about where you want to go. It's a good idea to go somewhere where you have friends or family so that you have people to get together with. The weather isn't something you should think about if you are going to be staying for a few months.

There are a lot of jobs that people can do in different countries and some people only need a cell phone and a laptop for their work. You should think about if you prefer to work for a company, or if you prefer to work for yourself before you go. If you work for a company, you may meet more people, but if you work on your own, then you decide when and where you work.

Moving to another country can be expensive, so it's a good idea to work before you go to make some extra money.
