

A: Hey, Emma! Have you ever thought about what makes a good quality of life?

B: Hi, Alex! Yes, I have. A key factor is having strong relationships. Compared to material possessions, relationships are more meaningful. For example, support from family and friends has a significant impact on emotional well-being.

A: Why do you think relationships are so important?

B: Because they help people distinguish between what is trivial and what is truly meaningful. In comparison with short-term pleasures, emotional support lasts longer. This helps us identify what truly matters in daily life.

A: That's a good point. What else would you add?

B: Financial security and access to healthcare are also important. People need to analyze their income before deciding how to spend money. Relative to other services, healthcare is critical for a stable life. If minor health problems are ignored, they can become severe.

A: That's true.

B: When people assess these factors carefully, they can reduce stress. Not only relationships but also financial security matter. As opposed to focusing on only one area, balance is essential. Overall, quality of life depends on several key elements working together.

1. What is identified as a key factor in quality of life?

- A. Healthcare
- B. Financial security
- C. Strong relationships
- D. Material possessions

2. Why are relationships important according to the dialogue?

- A. They reduce expenses.
- B. They provide financial security.
- C. They help people identify what truly matters.
- D. They make short-term pleasures more meaningful.

3. What should people do before deciding how to spend their money?

- A. Assess their health.
- B. Analyze their income.
- C. Compare different relationships.
- D. Focus on short-term pleasures.

4. What can happen if minor health problems are ignored?

- A. They disappear.
- B. They become severe.
- C. They cause financial security.
- D. They improve people's emotional well-being.

5. What is the main idea of the dialogue?

- A. Relationships are the only important factor in life.
- B. Financial security is more important than healthcare.
- C. Quality of life depends on several factors working together.
- D. People should focus mainly on their income and material possessions.