HOW TO MANAGE YOUR TIME

Balance is key for Mary, a busy teenager. She uses an app to stay organized with her assignments and deadlines; the app helps her receive reminders to ensure she doesn't forget anything. Mary also makes a daily to-do list to help her stay focused and motivated. She's mindful of not spending too much time on online social media, limiting her usage to an hour each day to avoid wasting her time. On weekends, Mary enjoys relaxing and socializing with friends, going to the cinema, shopping, or just hanging out. She also does some volunteer work at a local charity, which provides valuable academic experience and looks great on her CV.

James, an adult working a nine-to-five job, is also aware of the importance of time management. He starts his day by making a to-do list, prioritizing the most urgent or difficult tasks first when he has the most energy. To avoid distractions, James turns off email and social media notifications on his phone and closes his office door, allowing him to concentrate. On the day when he must work overtime, he quickly rearranges his tasks and makes sure everything gets completed on time. When at home, James spends his quality time with his family, playing games or going to the park with his two young children. James and his wife share the housework, taking turns cooking and cleaning, ensuring a great work-life balance. In his free time, James keeps fit by playing football with friends and going to the gym, which helps him relax and clear his mind.

A short history of international tourism

Foreign lands have probably always interested people, but very few of them traveled for fun until recently, because it was difficult to go by land or sea to another country. The people who took the challenging journeys were mainly explorers trying to find out about new places, for example, where a river started or ended, or what was on the other side of an ocean. Others were people who wanted to buy or sell things in a foreign country.

In Europe, tourism for ordinary people started to become popular once people could travel by train in the 19th century. Slowly, countries in other parts of the world got railways, and more and more people traveled in their own country or even, by steamship, to other countries, for fun. Then the plane was invented at the start of the 20th century and, 50 years later, cheap air travel and car hire made tourism a worldwide leisure activity.

People who went abroad at this time had to learn some of the language of any country which they visited. Small phrase books for pockets or bags were sold for many languages, and tourists carried them so they could check out quickly how to say, for example, 'Where is the train station?' or 'How much does it cost for a double room for one week?'

Tourists still need to learn some words in a foreign language if they want to visit most countries. But nowadays, there are very few places where they need to learn the language of that country or use phone apps and maps there. Why? Because anyone working in the tourist industry anywhere in the world probably speaks English.
