A BUSY WEEKEND AND FUTURE PLANS FOR DANIEL

Daniel is a hardworking graphic designer who works for a large media company in Chicago. He is looking for a new assistant who has good communication skills and creative ideas. His job is well-paid, but he has to work long hours and often suffers from high stress levels. To maintain a healthy balance, Daniel believes that having a good sense of humour and plenty of free time are essential for happiness.

This week, Daniel has a very packed schedule. On Friday evening, he is meeting his friend Sarah at a local restaurant. Sarah is tall, slim, with long dark wavy hair, and she looks like a professional model. They are having dinner together to celebrate her new promotion. On Saturday morning, Daniel is going to a shopping mall because he needs to buy a formal suit for a business presentation. His colleague advised him that he should always try on clothes before buying them and that he shouldn't pay full price if there is a sale. Daniel also hopes to get a discount on a leather bag.

Regarding his weekend leisure time, Daniel might go cycling in the countryside on Sunday if the weather is clear. However, if it rains, he may stay at home, do some housework, and watch video games online with his brother. Next month, he is planning a short vacation. He thinks technology will make future travel much faster and easier, but he worries that people won't have enough time to relax properly.
