Cochlear Implants – Advantages, Disadvantages and Factors

Hearing aids (35) normal sounds, so they are good for mild hearing loss but not for severe loss. Cochlear implants help some people a lot, but do not work so well for everyone. The brain gets different (36) from an implant, so users must relearn how to hear. Cochlear implants are not a cure. Users need ongoing training in (37), lip-reading and sign language. The surgery can damage nerves. It may also destroy any (38); in such cases, those users cannot go back to using a hearing aid. The most important factor for selecting users in the (39) of their deafness, and also age and previous speaking ability. Finally, the condition of the nerve cells in the cochlea is a factor, because (40) can damage these cells.
