

Why do we give feedback during conversation?

Look again at parts of Petru and Vlad's conversation below. Then, read the rules on feedback use and choose the correct answer complete them.

1. Feedback is used to show your partner you want to interrupt them so you can take their turn/ to invite more conversation and show you are engaged?
2. Feedback should be/ shouldn't be a full turn. Naturally, the partner will reply to your feedback before you can start discussing another prompt.
3. You can/ cannot use more than one feedback strategy at the same time.

P:.... The children don't like 3.the type of concert their parents picked.

V:They prefer different style of music...

P: 4.Yeah, different styles. How do you think about visiting historical sites?

V:I think this could be interesting, maybe, but more for the parents than the children.

V: I think maybe the parents don't have that 1. much time to...

P: Time 2. and you can get exhausted.
