

Today you're going to write a short piece while I talk to each of you one at a time. You have 35 minutes. Spend the first 5 minutes planning — write down your main idea and your reasons. Then write. Aim for about 100 - 150 words. This is not a test. There's no score. I just want to see how you write right now, so please write the way you normally would. If you finish early, read your work again and check it — but please don't start a new piece.

Topic

“Should students have homework on the weekend? Give your opinion and two reasons.”
