Vincent van Gogh

Vincent van Gogh was born in 1853 in Zundert, the Netherlands, into a religious family. His father was a Protestant minister, and his mother loved art and nature. Vincent had several brothers and sisters, but his brother Theo was the person who supported him. Theo was also one of the (1) important people in Vincent's life. Before becoming an artist, Vincent had several different jobs, including working as an art dealer, a teacher, and a preacher. However, none of these careers was (2) satisfying as painting. At the age of 27, he decided to become an artist and began to study art seriously.

Van Gogh lived and worked in different parts of Europe, and his artistic style changed over time. His paintings became more (3) and expressive as he gained experience. He used stronger brushstrokes and (4) colors than many artists of his time. His paintings were (5) realistic than traditional paintings, but they were often more emotional. During his lifetime, Van Gogh sold very few paintings, so he was (6) famous than many other artists. However, his reputation grew after his death. Today, he is considered one of the (6) influential artists in Western art, and The Starry Night is one of his (7) famous paintings. His story shows that success is not always immediate and that the (8) successful artists during their lifetime can sometimes become the most admired later.
