Last summer, I joined a youth camp in New York City. I had an amazing time and made many new friends. We stayed at Thornwood campus for three weeks. We attended English classes every morning and joined team activities in the afternoon. In the evenings, we played board games and watched movies together.

The most unforgettable experience was our visit to the top of the Rockefeller Centre. From there, I could see the whole city. I also tried some American food and took lots of photos.

That was the first time I travelled to another country without my parents, and I felt more independent and confident after the trip.
