

It had a large screen and several colourful buttons.

One day, Alex was exploring an old room when he found a strange silver machine.

He saw flying cars in the sky and tall buildings everywhere, and he felt amazed.

Suddenly, he pressed a green button, and the machine took him to the year 2090.

“Can you help me fix my time machine?” he asked a small robot.

Alex felt worried, but he decided to ask for help.

He needed to find a way to repair it so he could return home.

Next, Alex discovered that his time machine had lost its power.

Alex quickly connected a special cable to the machine, but the screen remained dark.

"Please work! I need to go home!" shouted Alex.

Then, Alex followed the robot to a futuristic control room.

Suddenly, BEEP! BEEP! the computer showed a warning that the machine might stop working forever.

He pressed the red button, and the machine suddenly glowed brightly.

A few seconds later, he returned safely to the old room.

Finally, the time machine started working again.

Alex climbed inside and pressed the green button.

“That was the most amazing adventure of my life!” he said with a smile.

He felt relieved because he had solved the problem and could go home.
