

A Visit to Grandma's House

Last Saturday, Nina visited her grandmother's house in the countryside. The weather was cool, and the garden looked beautiful after the rain.

When Nina walked into the kitchen, she could smell something sweet. Her grandmother was baking an apple pie. It smelled a lot like cinnamon and fresh apples. Nina tasted a small piece. It was warm, sweet, and a little sour.

After lunch, Nina went outside. She touched the bark of an old tree. It felt rough. Then she picked up a smooth stone near the pond. She could also hear birds singing in the trees. Their songs sounded a little like music.

Near the fence, Nina saw some yellow flowers. They smelled fresh and sweet. She also noticed an old apple on the ground. It looked rotten, so she did not touch it.

Nina enjoyed using her senses to explore her grandmother's garden.
