Fashion will be going green this year. It's not the colour that people will be wearing, but 1 materials that they will be using that are green. Londoners are developing new fashions using 2 wide range of recycled materials. Jenny Davis designs shoes that are made from 3 old tyres. The shoes have become popular among 4 unusual group of people – city office workers. With a price tag of £100 5 pair they might be the only group that can afford them. Another young designer, Stephanie Burrows, has been making 6 organic cotton T-shirts for over a decade. She is now experimenting with other materials, such as 7 leaves of soy beans. Traditionally, the beans are used for food, but 8 rest of the plant is thrown away. This is a great project because it allows the farmers to make more money from their product.
