The given maps illustrate the conversion of a coastal area into a park.

Overall, the (1) _____ side of the cliff has been redeveloped with several recreational amenities, while the beach on the other side has easier access.

Previously, farm buildings were on a side road in the (2) _____ of the coastal land. While the (3) _____ land was entirely used for agricultural purposes, the (4) _____ one was divided into two parts. Animals occupied the zone (5) _____ the farm buildings, while the other was unused. The cliff extended along the land, separating it from the beach and the sea.

Later, the beach and the sea remained untouched, but steps were added to the cliff, allowing more visitors to the beach. Meanwhile, the other side of the area witnessed substantial changes. As one entered the park from the main road, they could reach a car park where farm buildings used to be. From there, visitors could follow the footpath on the (6) _____ side leading to a lake or take the (7) _____ one to the woods. Both of these areas were surrounded by trees. Besides, there was a new coffee shop located (8) _____ the car park.
