Finally, a smartphone

I'd always wanted a smartphone but they were all so expensive. I didn't have enough savings and I (0) don't want my parents to pay for it. So, I worked at the weekends to earn some money. On Saturdays I helped my uncle (1) on his mee rebus stall. I washed the dishes and helped him (2) served the customers. My uncle paid me RM30 each day. On Sundays, I helped my mum's best friend at her house. I (3) sweep and mopped the floor. I also helped her two small children with (4) they homework. Aunt Julie paid me RM50 for about four hours' work. (5) During a few months, I had saved up quite a lot. My dad (6) brings me to the shop and I finally got my dream smartphone. I managed to (7) got a smartphone through my own hard work. I was very proud of myself. I was even prouder (8) what I found out that I had lots of savings left.
