Questions 1 – 5: For each question, choose the correct answer.

Blue jeans were invented over 100 years ago by a man named Levi Strauss. He was born in Germany in 1829, and came to the United States as a young man. In 1853, he went to California. People had found gold there, and Strauss decided to sell clothes to the miners who were digging for gold. Miners needed very tough clothes, because their work was hard and dirty. Strauss used heavy material to make pants that wouldn't wear out. His first pants were brown. Later, he couldn't find any brown material, so he started using blue. In 1873, he found a way to use small pieces of metal called "rivets" to make his pants even stronger. Those were the first blue jeans, and they didn't look much different from the jeans we wear today. Levi Strauss died in 1902, but people all over the world still wear Levi's jeans.

The on-line calendar will send you an e-mail message to remind you about your mother's birthday or your friend's graduation day. If you don't have time to go shopping, the on-line calendar lets you order presents (such as flowers or a book) and pay for them by sending your credit card number.
