Text A

What the Greeks gave us

by Beth Samson

Most people know how ancient Greece created many very important things that we still use today. But there are some things that might surprise you.

Where am I?

It's amazing how life long ago was similar to life today. For example, don't you hate it when you get lost? So did they! That's why they invented maps, although they had a very different style from our modern ones.

Text B

Send me a letter

by Isabel Jones

This week, I had lunch with a friend who works for the Post Office. He told me about the history of the postal service. Let me share some interesting facts with you.

A long, long time ago

LIVEWORKSHEETS

The oldest postal service began around 8,000 years ago! In ancient Iran, people rode horses to take mail from one place to another. You couldn't just send a letter, though. Most of the mail was government documents. Also, we didn't have the stamp until 1837!

Text C

An ancient culture

by Anh Long Sun

Long ago, Europeans sailed across the Atlantic to what is now the United States. But much longer before that, Native Americans were living there and had interesting lives.

Creative people

Native Americans invented many things that we use today. Did you know that people in the far north of the country invented the kayak, a type of small boat? The materials they used to make them were different to those we use today, but the design hasn't changed at all.

Text D

An easy life

by Andy Moon

In today's world, we enjoy so many things that make our lives easier. But do you ever think about where it all came from? Here's my list of little things that made a big difference.

Make a mark

What do you use when you want to draw a fish, a frog or a river? A pencil, of course! Did you know that a French engineer first invented them in 1795? These little things let people draw anything from quick marks to big famous art.

1 Text ___ mentions a form of transport that people built.
2 Text ___ mentions something very small but very important.
3 Text ___ mentions things that don't look the same now as in the past.
4 Text ___ mentions an animal that people used in their job.
5 Text ___ mentions people travelling across water.
6 Text ___ mentions something we use to find places.
