Buried treasure

What do we do with things we don't use anymore? Some people throw things away. Other people put things at the back of the cupboard and forget about them. The things could be presents they didn't want, old toys, items from their family, old clothes – anything! These things are put away and we forget about them.

Shivon O'Neill believes that you can find many interesting things in people's homes. Here's her story. When Shivon was a child, she used to spend her summer holidays at her grandparents' farm in the Wicklow Hills in Ireland.

'My grandma and grandad had a huge farm. I haven't got any brothers or sisters, so I spent my time at the farm playing and looking around. My family has owned the farm for more than 100 years. A lot of people have lived there and have put away things that they didn't want. I found forgotten old clothes, photos and books in different places around the old buildings. I had a wonderful time!' Shivon told us.

In one of the buildings at the farm, Shivon found a painting by a famous Irish painter. The painting was hidden for 60 years and no one knew! The forgotten painting was sold for a lot of money.

'Yes, of course my family was happy about getting a lot of money for the painting,' Shivon says. 'But the money wasn't so important to me. I am happy that a beautiful painting is now in someone's home and people are looking at it every day!'

At university, Shivon studied art history and woodwork. After she finished her degree, she went home to Limerick in Ireland.

'I started helping my family and neighbours. I looked in their attics, their garages and in all the places people use to put things away so that they can't see them every day. Some amazing things were hidden away!'

Over the next few months, Shivon found lots of valuable toys, paintings, clothes and many other things. She even found a handbag that used to belong to Jackie Kennedy. The things were sold for around 1.5 million euros.

These days, Shivon works all over the world finding things which are hidden in people's homes. People often have no idea that such expensive things are hidden in their homes. So, next time you are thinking about throwing away the things you aren't using anymore, maybe you should get in touch with Shivon!
