EASTER in Great Britain

In Great Britain Easter is one of the major Christian festivals of the year. A very famous British tradition is "Maundy Money". On Maundy Thursday (one day before Good Friday), the Queen distributes small silver coins to people. The ceremony takes place in Westminster Abbey in London every year. On Good Friday hot cross buns are traditionally eaten. The cross buns mark the end of Lent. Before Easter Sunday people decorate eggs with different colours and special techniques. On Easter Day children take part in the game called 'egg hunt'. They search for chocolate eggs in the garden because they believe the Easter Rabbit hides them there. On Easter Monday many people, mostly children, take part in egg-rolling competitions. They roll hard-boiled eggs down grass slopes in parks. The winner is the one who gets to the bottom first.
