

STORIES

Learn Beginning, Middle, and End

Stories have three parts: a beginning, a middle, and an end. As you read, look out for these three parts. They help you understand the story.

Read the story. Match the words with the correct part of the story.

Camila draws potatoes, sausages, carrots, and onions. She colors them.

Camila's mom looks at her picture. "Camila," she says. "I think you're hungry!"

Camila wants to draw a picture, but she doesn't know what to draw. Then she has an idea. Food!
