Masked realities

wanting to look like other people, or have a lifestyle like them.

Online 'cyber' bullying

people can make themselves seem more successful or happier than they are.

Having fake friends

when technology is used to threaten, embarrass, or target another person.

Comparing yourself to other people

Private information could be shared without your permission by people pretending to be your friends.