Did you know ...?

- When a film <sup>1</sup> _____, voice actors usually provide the dialogue in different languages, but sometimes the dubbing <sup>2</sup> _____ by the original actors, for example Jodie Foster (French) and Viggo Mortensen (Spanish).
- The Martian* <sup>3</sup> _____ on a screen in space shortly after it was released. Astronauts watched it on the International Space Station. Maybe one day it <sup>4</sup> _____ on Mars!
- The name 'Oscars' <sup>5</sup> _____ by accident – an executive director of the Film Academy said the statues looked like her Uncle Oscar and the name stuck! Since the awards began, about 3,000 Oscar awards <sup>6</sup> _____.
- It's surprising how many statues <sup>7</sup> _____! Angelina Jolie hid hers and doesn't know where it is, and Matt Damon can't find his. Marlon Brando, who <sup>8</sup> _____ best _____ for his role in The Godfather, lost both of his statues.
- Na'vi, the language created for the 2009 film Avatar, <sup>9</sup> _____ still _____ today! Fans learn new words and talk to other Na'vi speakers on learnnavi.org.
