A: Hi, what you up to? Are you catching up on some work?

B: No, I'm looking for a present for my mum.

A: Your mum? Is it her birthday?

B: No, it's Mother's Day on Sunday – remember?

A: Oh yes, of course! I'd totally forgotten. I always give mine flowers.

B: Yeah, well, I can't go home to visit this Sunday, so I need to send her something through the post – that's why I'm looking online.

A: Flowers. That's easy enough.

B: Nah, I want to get her _____, _____ a bit more personal, you know.

A: So what are you looking for then?

B: I don't know! She's so difficult to buy for. She's always complaining that her house is cluttered and too full of stuff so

I can't buy her a poster or a plant or anything like that.

A: Get her _____ for the kitchen. You know, _____ cooking appliance.

B: No, she'd hate that! No, I want to get her something for her, something she can enjoy.

A: A book then?

B: No, more stuff!

A: Music?

B: _____. Her taste is so different from mine, I just never seem to get it right.

A: Chocolates?

B: She does love chocolate, but no, she says she's trying to lose weight, so she wouldn't thank me for that!

A: Hey, what about this?

B: What?

A: This link here – see. It says 'experiences'.

B: Experiences? What's that?

A: It's _____ like tickets to concerts, a free trip somewhere, or something like dinner for two, or a day at a spa, that kind of _____.

B: Hey, that might be a good idea. Let's look at the spas. I like this one – a day for two at a local spa.

A: Check to see if there's one near where she lives.

B: Yes, there is. Great, that's it! Problem solved. Thank you! It'll be a nice surprise for her. What about you? Are you going to get _____ for your mum?

A: Nah, I'll just get flowers.
