

Relative Clauses, and Relative Pronouns & Adjectives

Write answers to these.

1. a place where you like eating
2. someone who annoys you
3. a time when you were surprised
4. an activity which you hate doing
5. an activity that you love doing
6. someone who(m) you admire
7. a time when you won or achieved something important
8. the reason why you're in this English class
9. something that you can do really well
10. a place in which you feel relaxed
11. a reason why you stay up late at night
12. a place where you like meeting friends
13. a reason why you might get up early in the morning at the weekend
14. someone whose lifestyle you would like to have (famous or not)

Now, with your partner you ask "What's _____" putting in the gap the answer to the questions above.

E.g.

Imagine my answer to number 7 is "skiing in Sheffield" and number 10 is "the forest"

I ask "What's "skiing in Sheffield""? and your partner has to say (exactly) "Skiing in Sheffield was a time when you won or achieved something important"

I ask "What's "the forest""? and your partner has to say (exactly) "The forest is a place where you feel relaxed."

(Substitute who for people)