A recent study shows that rappers are the musicians that use the most vocabulary in their songs. Researchers of the study included 93 artists from 25 different types of music, such as pop, new age, and rock. Some famous musicians like Bruce Springsteen and Def Leppard did not give permission for the researchers to include their music in the study.

Of the 93 artists, Eminem had the most unique words. He used 8,818 different words. The next three musicians on the list, Jay-Z, Tupac Shakur, and Kanye West are also rappers. The fifth artist on the list is singer-songwriter Bob Dylan. Some people are not surprised by the results because rap music in general uses a lot more words than other types of music.

The researchers want people to understand that the study does not show that some artists are better than others. Their findings only demonstrate that there is another way to understand how artists make music.
