TV channels are dangerous for our culture and language. Today, we can watch so many TV channels online or using satellite. Most of them broadcast content that is not suitable for our culture. For example, the clothes people wear can affect young people in Oman.

They try to wear the same kind of clothes they watch on TV. Some of young people stop wearing dishdashas and caps. Instead, they wear shirts and trousers. Others, wear necklaces and earrings because their favourite TV heroes do this.

Also, Arabic language has been influenced by those TV channels. People mix up words from other languages with Arabic. They feel this makes them modern people. Others, use bad words as they are a part of so many western movies. It is very important to consider our Muslim culture and avoid such words.

The difference between local and international TV channels is in choosing the right content for the Omani people. In the past, there was one TV channel, but it selected its movies and programmes carefully. They were watched before being broadcasted to people. Now, people can watch TV channels from any part of the world. Their owners do not care about our culture. They care more about how much they earn.
