 We're a family of four and we're looking for a new home in the city. My husband's going to work in a new office, and I'm a hairstylist. We have two young children. Any suggestions for a good area?

 We live in an apartment in Brooklyn, about twenty minutes from Manhattan. There are buses every fifteen minutes, so we don't need to use the car every day. Parking isn't a problem because the building has an underground garage. The shopping's good in this area.

 Our family lives in a house in Queens, about half an hour by train from Manhattan. It's a quiet area, without much traffic. We have a small front yard, and a backyard with a patio. The children are sitting out there right now! I only use the car to go shopping, and I park it in the driveway, so it's all very convenient.

 We live in a rented apartment in the Bronx, near Yankee Stadium. At the moment, people are coming out of a baseball game, so it's a little noisy, but it's not so bad at night. The stores and restaurants are good, and we can walk to most places. Oh, and there's a nice view of a nearby park from our balcony, too!
