Internet sites like MySpace, Bebo and Facebook are a great way for young people to keep in touch with their friends but there are things you _____ do to stay safe. In some sites you _____ use your real name if you don't want to, so invent a name for yourself. In some sites it's a rule that you _____ give your email address but this _____ be your normal one- you can use any address. You can write lots of interesting things on your online page, but something you _____ never do is put your house address or phone number. In fact you _____ give any information that could let strangers know your identity, because on the Internet you never know who is looking. Remember, too, that you _____ put your friends' personal details on your page, or you could put them in danger. So the message is: have fun, but take care.
