If you haven't tried Fishy Business yet, you really don't know what you are missing. Tucked away in a _____ area in the Old Town, this seafood restaurant is as popular today, as it first opened thirty years ago.

What I found most _____ about the restaurant was the delectable food. The variety of dishes is limited, as the chefs only prepare what has been caught on that day. That way, you can rest assured that your meal will be _____. To start, I ordered squid in a spicy sauce and for the main course, I picked the cod, which was cooked to perfection and served with crunchy seasonal vegetables. If you have a question about any of the dishes, there's always a waiter on hand to help you out. The staff in general struck me as being very _____, knowledgeable and efficient.

Another great thing about the place is the _____ décor. The red brick walls are covered in old, black and white photos of fishing scenes and nets are strung from the low ceiling. The atmosphere is cosy and _____ and the soft background music creates a laid-back atmosphere. When the bill arrives, you'll be in a _____ surprise. The average cost of two-course meal for two is _____ 60 pounds.

So, the next time you fancy seafood, head to Fishy Business for a meal to remember.
