

Lesson 14: Taking Notes

Just pretend you are writing a report on George Washington. You know that your report will have sections about Washington's childhood, his early career, his presidential years, and his later life. Find an article about Washington's life in a print or online source. Then, take some notes for you. Label each card with one of the subtopics listed above. Remember to write summaries, paraphrases, or quotes and to list your source at the bottom of each card.
