A STRANGE BOY'S PRAM

It was already midnight and Biraj has just left his aunt's place after a very later dinner. He greeted his aunt a goodnight and walked towards the elevator.

In the elevator, he suddenly felt very cold. It was a hot summer and there was no air-conditioner in the elevator. Yet, the hair on his skin was fully raised on.

It did not take long before he reached the ground floor. He exited the elevator and brisked casually towards the carpark. There, he saw a pram. He examined the pram carefully and realised it was brand new.

"This is weird. Who leaves a brand, new pram behind like this?" Biraj asked himself.

Out of the corner of his eyes, he saw a little boy crouched on the ground hugging his keees. His face had no eyes, nose and mouth. It was as blank as a fresh paper.

Biraj, frightened out of his wits, shoved the pram out of his way and made a run for the elevator.
