(script in Student's Book on p.201)

At the end of the two days, I have a [redacted] test. I go to a pub with Sheikh, and I have to talk to [redacted]. I start talking to people and it goes OK. I don't think English [redacted] really like it when a stranger starts speaking to them, but we laugh and I have some interesting conversations. Occasionally, Sheikh gives me [redacted]. He reminds me to make [redacted] contact with everyone I'm talking to, and tells me not to [redacted] my arms – that kind of thing.

As we leave the pub, we [redacted] hands. He says that the course has been good for me, and he gives me a [redacted] up. So have I changed? Am I more charismatic? Not [redacted] – I'm never going to stand like a [redacted] again, for example. But perhaps charisma is simpler than that, anyway; it's about understanding who you are [redacted], and showing the best version of yourself.
