| My name is Zayed, and I am planning a trip to Oman. Have you heard about ecotourism? Ecotourists visit natural areas to see plants and animals. It is important for ecotourists to be responsible and follow rules so that they do not harm the environment. If people are not careful, they can damage natural areas that scientists and governments work hard to protect. There are lots of parks and reserves full of unique plants and wildlife in Oman. I am interested in visiting the Al-Dimaniyat Islands Nature Reserve. The reserve is a group of nine islands, and I am excited to see the animals that live there. I have also been reading about the Al Saleel Natural Park and Jebel Samhan. Even though I have been to the Emirates Park Zoo in Abu Dhabi, the animals there live-in captivity. I think I would prefer to see them in their natural environment, in the wild. Hopefully, I will get the chance to see the Arabian leopard while I am in Oman. It is my favourite animal! | | |
