

Fill in the blanks to create true statements about egg hatching.

Incubation is the process by which

Eggs are naturally incubated by

During natural incubation, the hen will

Large numbers of eggs may be hatched artificially using

The place where large numbers of eggs are hatched at one time is called

In order for an egg to hatch it must first be

A hen's egg will hatch in

One important condition needed for successful hatching of eggs

The two stages of artificial incubation are

During artificial incubation, the eggs are treated with a spray in order to

