What's Their Job?

This week our reporter Diana talks to Kevin Oaks, a librarian in Chicago.

Diana: What do librarians do?

Kevin: Well, we organise books and magazines. We help people find things too!

Diana: Very interesting. Tell me about a typical day for you.

Kevin: I get up at 7 o'clock. I have breakfast and I read the newspaper. Librarians usually like to read! Then I go to the library at half past 8. I open the doors and I put books on the bookshelves. People visit the library all day. I help them find books and use the computers. Sometimes I answer questions. I have lunch at 1 o'clock. In the afternoons, we have a story hour. A lot of kids come to the library. I read short books to the kids. Then I go home at 5 o'clock.

Diana: What are the characteristics of a librarian?

Kevin: Hmm. I think librarians should be organised and friendly – and most of all, they should love books!

Diana: Thank you, Kevin.
