Grammar 1

Present perfect simple, present perfect continuous

1 Read about the uses of the present perfect simple and the present perfect continuous.

Present perfect simple

- something that started in the past and has continued until now
He has coached wrestling for eight years.
- something that happened in the past, but we don't know or we don't say exactly when
The team has bought new uniforms.
- something that happened in the past, but has a result or an effect in the present
Steven has broken his leg, so he isn't playing in the match this week.
- an action that has just finished or happened
We've just scored a goal!
- experiences and achievements
Our cricket club has won lots of prizes recently.

Present perfect continuous

- for actions that started in the past and are still in progress now or have happened time and time again until now
*We have been teaching basketball for years.
He's been having tennis lessons since he was five.*
- for continuous actions that happened in the past and have finished recently, but have a result or an effect in the present
She's tired because she's been jogging.
- to emphasise how long actions have been in progress
You've been practising for the badminton game for weeks.

Present perfect simple vs present perfect continuous

We use the present perfect simple to focus on the result of a completed action or how many times something has happened. However, we use the present perfect continuous to focus on the action itself or how long something has been happening. It is unimportant whether the action has finished or not.

Carol has played squash once.

Kevin's been practising in the skateboarding park all weekend.

2 Read the sentences. Which tense do they both use? In which sentence has the person not returned yet?
