METAS DE APRENDIZAJE / COMPETENCIAS A DESARROLLAR

- ❖ Understands and uses the right to access communication.
- ❖ Identifies and uses First Conditional structure to talk about possible present situations (condition) and their consequences in the future (result).

ENGAGE - WARM UP

VOCABULARY IN CONTEXT

TALKING ABOUT PRESENT CONDITION-FUTURE RESULT RELATIONS

FIRST CONDITIONAL structure is used to talk about situations or events that can occur in the present (present condition) and the consequences that might happen in the future (result) if that condition becomes true. It is not possible to know exactly what will happen in the future, but this structure describes possible things, which could easily come true.

In first conditional sentences, the structure is usually:

if / when + present simple + (,) + will + infinitive or will + infinitive + if / when + present simple

Examples:

Instituto Universitario de Caldas

Use the links given in RESOURCE 1 and RESOURCE 2 to watch the following videos, in which you will see further explanations on this topic as well as examples of it.

STUDY 1 - PRESENTATION

FIRST CONDITIONAL

First Conditional

Structure

IF + Simple Present, Simple Future
(S + will/won't + V(bare form))

Usage

To talk about possibilities in the present
or in the future

Examples

- If it rains, I will stay at home.
- If I wake up late, I will miss the bus.
- And, if it's sunny, we'll go to the park.
- If Juan leaves, Paula will be sad.
- If I find your email, I will send you the picture.
- If you study hard, you will pass your exams.

NOTES:

a. You can change the order of the clauses.

You don't need a comma between the clauses when the if-clause is after the result-clause.

Compare:

comma: If this event or condition happens, this will likely happen.

no comma: This will likely happen if this event or condition happens.

Extra examples: My mom will be angry if I'm late tonight.

You'll be late for work if you don't hurry.

You will have bad luck if you open an umbrella indoors.

b. You can make one or both clauses negative.

Use won't in the if-clause.

Examples:

If you don't put your toys away, you won't get any dessert.

If you don't study, you won't get into a good university.

If I go out tonight, I won't go out tomorrow night.

c. You can use other modal verbs instead of will.

A modal verb is an auxiliary verb. It is a helping verb. It is used before another verb to express ideas such as ability, possibility, certainty, necessity, or permission.

- may and might

You can use may or might to say that the future event is possible, but not definite. (The if-clause has less than a 50% chance of happening.)

Examples:

If you need someone to help you move, I might be able to help.

If I arrive early, I may go to the party.

- can

You can also use modal verbs in the result-clause to make an offer.

Example:

I can get you a ticket to Madonna's concert if you want to go!

- should

You can also use modal verbs in the result-clause to make a suggestion.

Example:

If you get a new job, you should really buy nicer clothes!

d. You can use the imperative in the result-clause.

The imperative is the verb form you use when you give someone an order or tell someone what to do.

Example:

If you call your mother tonight, tell her I said "hello"!

GUÍA DE TRABAJO VIRTUAL

e. You can use questions in the result-clause.

Use the regular question word order. The question is never in the if-clause.

Examples:

What are you going to do if it rains tomorrow?

If you can't drive to work, how will you get there?

If you are sick tomorrow, will someone else be able to do your work?

If you have a minute, can you please check this for me?

f. You can use other conjunctions instead of if.

You can use conjunctions of time, like when, before, after, as soon as, or until, instead of if in the if-clause. Using these conjunctions means that the situation goes from possible to definite or for sure.

Examples:

I'll wash the dishes when my TV show is over.

I'll finish this report before I leave tonight.

I'll eat dinner after I finish my homework

I'll sit outside until it gets dark.

I'll wash the dishes as soon as this TV show is over.
