

Igor So, what options are still ?

Travel agent OK. There are these three which I managed to print out earlier. I thought they looked good.

I OK,

T Um, the first is called the Dumbarton Tablelands. It looks pretty good to me. It's in . The holiday really involves being close to and almost living with them, in fact, because you get to stay in a quite luxurious or cabin built and surrounded by . And, you know, and lizards and things if you like that sort of thing, so you're very sort of ...

I Close to nature.

T Close to nature, that's right.

I . I guess I could enjoy that. Er, what else have you got?

T Well, there's this one in the Bago Nature Reserve, where you go and stay with in a small away from other tourists and the usual tourist spots, so you discover lots about the way they live and you sort of live in the family, , help them with their work, that sort of thing.

I Mm. , then.

T Well, it depends on you. It's very different, and they say a change is as good as a rest. And then there's San Luis Island.

I Mm. at San Luis?

T Well, it's a small island, just a few miles from the coast of , but I'm not sure if it's really up your street. You might like it because hasn't spoilt it yet, but I'd say it's more a holiday for young people. You go and and, you know, you help the local school and you get to meet the kids and sort of try your hand .

I Teaching what?

T Oh, , whatever . What makes the island interesting, though, is their emissions policy. There are no cars - a bicycle to get about, and you get there by boat.
