

-

11. Springtime brings such beautiful moods in the morning, especially at the top of this hill where you can visit this nice church. Free and open every day and night.
12. Right now, the US Congress is debating a law that will give them the power to censor the world's internet creating a blacklist that may target YouTube and WikiLeaks.
13. Our oceans are dying, our air changing, and our forests and grasslands turning to desserts. From fish and plants to wildlife to human beings, we are killing the planet that sustains us.
14. The crazy focus on short term profits that motivates countries to stall and scuttle action on a climate crisis that literally threaten the survival of all of us cannot be tolerated.
15. Credit cards are simple to use, but consumers have a lot of choice in exactly how they use them. Differences among cards provide even more choices to consumers.
16. Nat Geo has combed a globe to find Adventurers of the Year, each selected for extraordinary achievement in exploration, conservation, and adventure sports.
17. The English Lab, housed in the Administration building, which consists of two adjoining rooms which contain 70 Macintosh computers, 15 Apple IIe computers and 3 laser printers.
18. After the disasters on March 11, tens of thousands were ordered to leave their homes in the vicinity of the damaged nuclear plant. Their footprints now frozen in the mud.
19. The vertiginous "infinity pool" at the Marina Bay Sands resort offers a sweeping view of Singapore, a country that is achieved success while building up instead of out.
20. Seoul's electrifying growth, from impoverished war-torn capital in the 1950s to economic powerhouse, has turned its cityscape into a dense grid of houses and office towers. Its transformation will prove that rapid growth can bring rapid wealth.

21. Despite stiff penalties for illegal entering to the zone, some animal rescuers defied restrictions as they sought to aid pets and farm animals that had been left behind.
22. "The blended wing body" can become a popular template for commercial passenger planes in the coming decades because of its fuel-saving potential, according from a new report by IMechE.
23. These apartment rooms in the 25-story Evergreen Tower are identical, but each family adds humanizing touches to its 150-square-foot living rooms—from trophies and wedding pictures to a cuckoo clock.
24. Due to engineering advances, a supersonic airplane can be built much better and much cheaper today. The Concorde is ahead of its time in terms of its engine design and the materials.
25. One argument for commercial mid-air refueling is that it would help make planes more energy-efficient, because it wouldn't have to take off with full tanks.
26. The Asia Pacific Scholarship Consortium is an informal network of universities in Thailand, Hong Kong, Malaysia and Philippines that aims to facilitate scholarships in high quality postgraduate courses for individuals who require financial support to study.
27. Samsung Group has a corporate responsibility for South Korea, forming a vital core part of the South Korean economy. If the company's able to run at this rate until the next decade, it would account for more than 20% of the nation's total exports.
28. Despite the government and the Ministry of National Defense explain that we need to strengthen defense capabilities to control the sea, judging from a variety of evidence, it's highly likely that Jeju Island will become the centre of a dispute between the US and China.
29. Nonviolence is mainly understood by a strategy, as a way of ensuring that their protest actions are embraced by the society and the media.

30. Look around and you will be surprising at how much our everyday life depends on one thing: oil.

1

2

3

4