Read the story and then answer QUESTIONS L6.

Len was a very selfish nine-year old boy. He lived in a nice house and had everything a boy could have. As an only child he was always spoilt. He always had nice lunch and sweets which he ate in front of his friends, without sharing. He never shared his toys either.

One sunny day, Akho, Benjamin and Xabiso went to play by Len. Akho decided to teach him a lesson. He took his bicycle along. The boys took turns riding up and down the pavement on Akho's bicycle.

Len became angry and sulky when his friends wouldn't let him have a turn. "You get your own bicycle Len", called Xabiso. "Then you can join in the fun!"

Len felt very sad and disappointed. He thought he was going to enjoy the afternoon, but now he felt sad and lonely. He realised how unkind he had been towards his friends and how sad they must have felt.

Suddenly Len had an idea. "Why don't you join me for some cold drink? And then we can build some puzzles!"

Len's friends were very surprised about this. They were happy that he was no longer thinking of himself. They hoped he would start sharing his toys and sweets more often. This thought made the friends smile.
