ELEPHANT

Did you know?
Pregnant elephants give birth to one calf which stays with the mother for many years.

There are two species of elephant: the African elephant and the Asian elephant.

The African elephant is the largest living land mammal.

Elephants have high levels of intelligence and are very sociable.

Elephants use their long trunks to smell, dig, dust themselves and to collect water and food such as berries and the leaves from the tops of trees.

Choose True or False.

1. There are two kinds of elephants.
2. The Asian elephant is the largest animal on land.
3. Elephants are very intelligent and sociable.
4. Elephants only use their long trunks to collect food.
5. Elephants eat berries and leaves of the trees.
6. Baby elephants stay with mother for one year.
7. Elephants live in Asia and Africa.
