Road signs are one of the important aspects to be taken seriously by drivers and passengers of any vehicles. They help us to pay attention and remind us the importance of following the rules.

There are many types of road signs that we must pay attention to when we are on the road. The first one is the red sign with a big white rectangle on it. That is called the no entry sign. It tells us that we are not allowed to enter a particular place.

Next, the blue sign with a shadow of a person on a wheelchair shows that it is a parking space for disabled people. We should avoid parking there.

Then, the red and white rectangular sign means that there could be problems on the road. So, we must be extra careful not to drive too fast.

Meanwhile, the green sign with white wordings and arrows simply shows the direction of the nearest exits or places for us to go to.
