1. Is tea a drink in England?
2. Do the English drink tea with milk?
3. Do the English eat scones with sugar?
4. Do the English eat sandwiches for tea?

Five o'clock tea is an old English tradition. At five o'clock the English often drink tea with milk and eat scones. Scones are traditional English breads and they eat them with cream and sugar. The English often have scones and sandwiches for tea too. So for them (поэтому для них) tea isn't a drink — it's a meal between afternoon and evening.
