MY DANCE CLASS

Last Sunday, I attended a traditional Malay dance class (0) at the first time. I never had any formal dance lessons before, so I felt quite nervous. When I (1) arrive at the dance studio, there were already some girls (2) waits. They were also beginners like me. It was a small class of only ten students. The dance instructor, Puan Azah said that (3) her wanted to guide everyone personally and it would be difficult to do if there were too many in the class. She also stressed that a good dancer should be able to perform (4) graceful. The first dance we were going to learn, the 'inang' dance was originally (5) the court dance before becoming a folk dance, enjoyed and performed by all individuals. She said the dance steps were not difficult to master and the slow music would enable new learners to move in rhythm easily. Then, she demonstrated each (6) steps of the dance for us to follow. After that, she played the music so we could learn how to practise the various dance steps. At the end of the class, we really had a great time and enjoyed (7) ours very much. Now, I am already looking forward to learn the 'Joget', (8) whom is a fast-paced dance with a catchy beat.
