You are going to read an extract from a short story. Answer the questions follow. For questions 1 to 6, choose the correct answer (A, @ B, C or D) and circle the correct letter A, B, C and D.

Online shopping is great to find that one item you have been looking for forever. But you can be let down by mismatching product descriptions and images.

This year, I had a very specific product in mind for my friend's birthday gift. She had been talking about this product for a year and I wanted to amaze her by getting the exact thing she wanted.

I had a photo of the model that he wanted, but I didn't know which store would have it. So, two weeks before her birthday, I went online to find it rather than wasting a lot of time walking from store to store without guarantee of finding it.

After some time searching, I found something similar to what I had been looking for. The problem was that there was a labelling mismatch: the product image was different to the product description, and the headline description also did not match. But I took the gamble and ordered it.

Unfortunately, the problems continued after I placed the order. I did not receive any shipping order updates, so I didn't know if it would arrive in two days or two weeks. It was incredibly frustrating, not least because it was a birthday gift and I didn't know if it was going to be delivered on time! There was a tracking number, but it linked out.

I was completely let down by the whole experience. Statistics show that consumers choose websites with enhanced delivery options, and lose trust in the retailer when delivery expectations are not met.

When the item arrived, it was different to what I had expected. The label on the packaging was different to the title on the product page. This made me incredibly frustrated as a customer. At the same time, I had no time to go to shops as I had to complete my science project with the other classmates at school. I was very worried as I might not have the chance to find the similar product before her birthday.

What were my options? Should I email and get a refund, and explain to my friend why I do not have a birthday gift for her this year, or do I accept what has happened and give the item to her even though it is not what she wanted? Well, after thinking for a while I decided to choose the first option.

- 23 Why do you think the writer placed the order even he noticed the problems?
- A He wanted the product to arrive before his friend's birthday.
 - B He didn't have a lot of time to find the product.
 - C The product was very cheap on online.
 - D The product could only be purchased through online.
- 24 From paragraph 5, the writer seemed that he was
- A delighted
 - B anxious
 - C curious
 - D impatient

Questions 27-32

You are going to read an article about the retail sector and customer satisfaction. Six sentences have been removed from the story. Choose from the sentences A to H the one which fits each gap (27 to 32). There are two extra sentences which you do not need to use.

From filling up their gas tanks to shopping online for clothing and home furnishings to picking up groceries, many customers just aren't happy with the experience. Why? 27

According to the latest American Customer Satisfaction Index (ACSI) Retail and Consumer Shipping report, customer satisfaction is down for the second year in a row. "There is a slump in customer satisfaction in every category of the retail sector," says David VanAmburg, Managing Director at the ACSI. Internet retail versus brick-and-mortar retail, department stores versus specialty stores, it's all down. 28

The ACSI arrived at the results by scoring six sectors of retail from zero to 100. 29 In specific categories, gas stations fared the worst, falling 2.6 percent to 74 points. The other five retail sectors the report analyzed—department and discount stores, health and personal care stores, Internet retail, specialty retail stores, and supermarkets—were all down in the rankings as well.

The reason for the decline in customer satisfaction? VanAmburg attributes it in part to "underwhelming customer service." Because of low unemployment, there's greater staff turnover. 30 That can lead to staff shortages. "Historically, the ACSI has found that the more service typically required for a given industry, the lower the customer satisfaction, and it rings true for retailers this year," VanAmburg adds. Things like courtesy and helpfulness of store staff, call center support, and even availability of merchandise on the shelves all have a service element and have seen drops from a year ago.

The report wasn't all bad news, however. Trader Joe's and Wegman's both improved in the rankings for customer service in the supermarket category. 31 The big news: Costco dethroned Amazon as the top online retailer. 32

A	And Costco topped the list for department stores.
B	It could be because many retail establishments are understaffed.
C	Retailers are struggling to find and train new employees.
D	Considering the importance of retail to overall consumer spending, this decline is a big deal.
E	Overall, the retail sector was down 0.9 of a point from last year's report, for a score of 77.4 out of 100.
F	These are the companies ASCI finds have the nicest customer service.
G	Many customers aren't happy with the service they receive at retail establishments.
H	The score was low.
