Name:

Match each word with the right picture

ad   homework   embarrassed   research   print   river   erase   literature

Read the article about the information you find on the Internet.

The internet makes life easy because you have access to the world with a click. But, what happens when you don't know what link to click on? Here are some stories about people who were in that situation.

My name is Mike. I'm in the third year of high school and I love the internet. When I have to do research for homework, I don't like to include information only from the Internet. I honestly prefer books. Once I copied some incorrect information. Now I check the sources of what I read on the internet.

I'm Julia, and I like doing all my homework using the internet. For my Last geography homework, I looked up information about volcanoes in Latin America. I didn't check the website and I just printed the first link I found. My teacher asked me about the Amazon Volcano. I said, I think it is a river, and my teacher replied, "Why did you write Amazon is a volcano?" I was so embarrassed.

I'm Carla and I don't like doing homework on the internet. Last week, I had to do a literature homework about poets, and, to be honest, I just copied some information from a website. When I gave my homework to my teacher, I didn't realize I hadn't erased all the links and ads that were copied in the document. I got a zero on my homework.

Identify if the ideas are True or False

Mike goes to university _____

Mike prefers books than including information from the internet _____

Julia likes doing all her homework using the internet _____

Julia made an error with her geography homework _____

Carla loves doing homework on the internet _____

Carla got a ten on her homework. _____

Write Mike, Julia and Carla in the blank in front of how they do homework

a. _____ looks for information in books .
b. _____ printed extra links in their homework.
c. _____ wrote the wrong information in the homework.
d. _____ loves the internet for doing homework.