

Exercise A

Fill in the blanks using simple future form of the verb given in the bracket.

Tomorrow, students (assemble) in the school playground at 08:00 am, to go to Heritage Village. They (have) their school picnic. The bus (arrive) at 08:30 am, sharp. We (reach) the Heritage Village at around 10:30 am. On reaching, students (go) around to see various displays. The staff at the spot (welcome) the students with flowers and scented perfumes. They (offer) the students snacks. After they eat their snacks, children (play) in the park. Around 01:00 pm, all students (assemble) for lunch. They (sit) in a circle and (sing) songs. At around 04:00 pm, students (gather) near the bus. They (board) the bus in a queue. At around 06:00 pm, they (reach) school. Their parents (pick) them up from the school.

Exercise B

Rewrite the paragraph as if these imaginary incidents from the past will instead occur sometime in the future. In other words, change the form of each main verb from the past tense to the future (in most cases, will plus the present form of the verb).

Visiting Her Majesty

I traveled to London to visit the Queen of England. Being a clever fellow, I disguised myself as a prince and walked into Buckingham Palace as if I owned it. After receiving directions from a chambermaid, I stepped into the Queen's bedroom and surprised Her Royal Highness with a hearty slap on the back. Then, of course, I tipped my hat, bowed, and delivered the usual compliments. After uncorking a bottle of champagne, we exchanged pleasantries and talked about our families for more than an hour. I showed her my photograph album and my stamp collection, and she showed me her historic collection of jewels. After a thoroughly entertaining visit, I traded email addresses with Her Majesty and then kissed her goodbye—on the fingertips of her white gloves, of course.

Example

Original: I traveled to London to visit the Queen of England.

Recast: I will travel to London to visit the Queen of England.

"Visiting Her Majesty" Recast in the Future Tense

I to London to visit the Queen of England. Being a clever fellow, I myself as a prince and to Buckingham Palace as if I owned it. After receiving directions from a chambermaid, I into the Queen's bedroom and Her Royal Highness with a hearty slap on the back. Then, of course, I my hat, , and the usual compliments. After uncorking a bottle of champagne, we pleasantries and about our families for more than an hour. I her my photograph album and my stamp collection, and she me her historic collection of jewels. After a thoroughly entertaining visit, I email addresses with Her Majesty and then her goodbye—on the fingertips of her white gloves, of course.

