Six years ago, I developed a passion for music and found myself listening to all the famous Pop musicians. There was one that I kept listening to, and eventually, I looked into who it was. It was the singer Taylor Swift and her song, "Love Story", is still one of my favorite songs of all time.

She is an American who started her singing career at the young of age 10. It was also about this time that she learnt how to play guitar and would write her own songs. She was discovered at the age of 16, while playing at the Bluebird Café, and became an instant sensation.

I think she is so beautiful in not only her looks, but her shining personality on stage. Her first four albums achieved more than $1 million dollars in sales in their first week. I admire her courage to have found her passion so young, and to have strived so hard towards achieving it. She is so talented that she can incorporate any genre from country to rock, into her songs. I love her music so much and have become one of her biggest fans. It would be so incredible if I ever had the opportunity to meet her one day.
